

1,013

There were 1,013 new diagnoses of HIV in Australia in 2016.
This has remained stable for the past five years.

The HIV notification rate has increased in Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people over the past ten years. In 2016, the HIV notification rate in Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people was 2.2 times greater than that of non-Indigenous people.

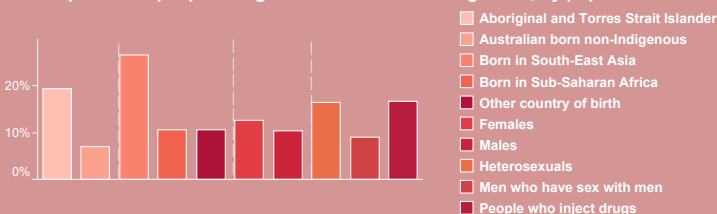

A late HIV diagnosis means that a person has been living with HIV infection for four years or more before being tested.

In 2015-2016, more than half of people living with HIV who were born in a high HIV prevalence country were diagnosed late.

Proportion of people living with HIV who are undiagnosed, by population

An estimated 11% of all people living with HIV in Australia were unaware of their HIV status in 2016.

People living and diagnosed with HIV

An estimated 86% of people diagnosed with HIV were on treatment in Australia in 2016.

