

Brief Description of Facebook groups

There are currently 3 types of Facebook groups:

Public groups: The content and membership list can be viewed by anyone and found by search engines such as Google.

Closed groups: The content is only visible to members but the membership list is public. If you become a member, this news appears on your friends' timelines and is shown on your profile. What you share within the group remains private...

Secret Groups: (The Pozhet group is a Secret Group)

The content and membership list are invisible to everyone except members. Membership is by invitation only and conversations within the group are completely private.

How private is a Secret Group?

- A link to the group will appear on your home page. This link will not be accessible anywhere else except on the home page of members. A link to Pozhet Connect will appear under the heading Groups
- No one will be able to find the group by searching or "googling" the name of the group
- Details about the Group or your membership of the group will not appear on your Facebook profile
- Updates or discussions made within the group will not appear on your personal feed
- Content of the group can only be seen by group members
- Members cannot share discussions of the group elsewhere
- No member of Facebook who is not a member of the group will be able to find the group
- When people who aren't Facebook friends are in the same group as you, they won't be able to see any more of your Facebook information than your privacy settings allow.
